

Year 10 Mock Mark Scheme

1) In the photographic image on the cover of Tatler magazine (Figure 1), Emma

Weymouth is wearing a pastel pink dress. What does this denote? (tick one box only):

- A) Royalty ☐
- B) Femininity ☐
- C) A pastel pink dress ☒
- D) Sophistication ☐

2) Analyse the cover of Tatler magazine (Figure 1 CSP Booklet) to show how the different elements create meaning.

| Level | Mark Range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|-------|------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 4     | 10-12      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Excellent analysis of the product that is detailed and critically engages with the nuanced aspects of how media language is used.</li><li>• Focus on the intended meanings created by the different elements of media language is thorough and effective throughout.</li><li>• Consistent appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li></ul>           |
| 3     | 7-9        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Good analysis of the product that is clear and generally engages with the nuanced aspects of how media language is used.</li><li>• Focus on the intended meanings created by the different elements of media language is mostly effective although lacks clarity in places.</li><li>• Mostly appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology.</li></ul>                   |
| 2     | 4-6        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Some satisfactory analysis of the product that engages with obvious or more straightforward aspects of how media language is used.</li><li>• Focus on the intended meanings created by the different elements of media language is inconsistent due to some satisfactory analysis and some description.</li><li>• Occasional appropriate use of subject specific terminology.</li></ul> |
| 1     | 1-3        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Basic analysis of the product only focusing on the more straight forwards aspects of how media language is used in a descriptive way.</li><li>• Focus on the intended meanings created by the different elements of media language is largely absent due to description not analysis.</li><li>• Very little, if any, appropriate use of subject specific terminology</li></ul>          |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

3) What is the target demographic and psychographic audience of the Times newspaper (Figure 2 CSP Booklet). Explain what features identify who the target audience is:

1 mark up to 3 for each of the following:

Older adults/35 and above

Well-educated

ABC1/Middle class

Slightly more Males than females

Succeeders

Aspirers

Mainstreamers

Must have both demographics and psychographics (at least 1). If 3 of the same can only gain 2 marks as the question says "and".

1 mark for each reasonable specific example from the CSP (content/design/images)

Total 6 marks.

4) Identify two differences between the Daily Mirror (Figure 3 CSP Booklet) and The Times newspaper (Figure 2 CSP Booklet) front covers. Give a reason for each (with regard to target audience).

| Difference                                                                                         | Reason                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Article on The Times is more detailed/had more text/is in more depth than the Daily Mirror.        | The audience of the Times is likely to be well-educated in comparison to the Daily Mirror.                                                                                              |
| The Mirror offers gossip about Royal Family whereas the Times does not.                            | The audience for the Daily Mirror are more C2DE and likely to be interested as seeing the royal family as "just like us". Times reader more conservative and interested in status.      |
| The colour scheme on the Times uses more subtle shades, whereas the Daily Mirror is much brighter. | The Times uses more sophisticated colours which will appeal more to middle class audience. The Daily Mirror is aiming just to catch the attention of the reader with the use of colour. |
| The Times masthead features the royal coat of arms. The Daily Mirror is bright red.                | The Times audience are likely to be more traditional and supportive of the monarchy.                                                                                                    |

Any other reasonable answer. Half a mark per difference/half a mark for reason. (2 marks total)

- The producers of Represent have chosen an overwhelmingly upbeat and positive representation of the BAME community and linked this to the campaign's inspirational message.

7) Explain how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created. Answer with reference to the OMO advertisement in Figure 4 (CSP Booklet)

| Level | Mark range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|-------|------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 4     | 10-12      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Excellent knowledge and understanding of contexts and their influence on media products and processes, demonstrated by consistently effective explanation of how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created.</li> <li>• Consistently appropriate and effective reference to the OMO advertisement.</li> <li>• Specialist terminology is used appropriately and effectively throughout.</li> </ul>                                         |
| 3     | 7-9        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Good knowledge and understanding of contexts and their influence on media products and processes, demonstrated by frequent effective explanation of how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created.</li> <li>• Generally appropriate and effective reference to the OMO advertisement, but there are occasional inaccuracies/omissions.</li> <li>• Specialist terminology is mostly used appropriately and effectively.</li> </ul>        |
| 2     | 4-6        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Satisfactory knowledge and understanding of contexts and their influence on media products and processes, demonstrated by some appropriate explanation of how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created.</li> <li>• Some appropriate reference to the OMO advertisement is present but it is of limited effectiveness.</li> <li>• Specialist terminology is used inappropriately on occasions and with limited effectiveness.</li> </ul> |
| 1     | 1-3        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Basic knowledge and understanding of contexts and their influence on media products and processes, demonstrated by little, if any, appropriate explanation of how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created.</li> <li>• Little, if any, appropriate reference to the OMO advertisement.</li> <li>• Specialist terminology is either absent or inappropriately used.</li> </ul>                                                           |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

Indicative content:

Demonstrates knowledge and understanding of how advertisements reflect the historical context in which they were created, such as:

- Social movements/contemporary attitudes are reflected in advertisements
- Use of language changes over time to reflect current usage
- Evolution of attitudes towards gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation etc. will lead to different images/roles/depiction of stereotypes within adverts
- Economic situation – prosperity vs. austerity will lead to different messages

- Greater policing of claims by advertisers has developed over time so claims about the effectiveness of products must be much more 'provable' in a scientific sense.

Reference to the OMO advertisement, such as:

- The advertisement appeared in 1955; a time in which many fewer women than today worked in paid employment.
- Social attitudes at the time placed powerful expectations on women that they should they should make the home, the family and their husbands the centre of their attention.
- Prevalent attitudes also judged married women by the quality of the domestic work that they carried out and by their own appearance, hence the ad's strong focus on very high standards of whiteness in clothes washing ('OMO-brightness').
- The ad exploits feelings of insecurity brought about by these social attitudes. These may have been reinforced by religion. In 1955, a much higher proportion of the population attended acts of worship and observed a faith. The idea that 'cleanliness is next to godliness' was widely believed.
- Many 1950s advertisements for personal and domestic products featured an authoritative male extolling the virtues of a product to a receptive female listener; the so-called 'voice of God' approach. Although implicit rather than explicit in the OMO advertisement, this approach is still evident. After the 1950s, feminism and equal rights legislation steadily changed social attitudes so that the 'voice of God' and its sexist implications became unacceptable.
- In the 1950s advertising was subject to fewer legislative and regulatory (e.g. ASA) controls. Exaggerated claims about the properties of products were commonplace.
- The clear contrast in tone and style between this 1955 advertisement and contemporary equivalents tells us a great deal about how values have changed particularly in the area of gender roles, work and the meanings of home and family.

8) What record label released the Arctic Monkeys single "I bet that you look good on the dance floor"? What kind of record label is it? [2 marks]

Domino/Domino Records

Independent Record Label

9) What record label are Black Pink signed to for their global distribution?

Interscope

which is a subsidiary of?

Universal/universal music group

[2 marks]

10) Name the other 2 of the 3 major labels which dominate the music industry.

- Sony
- Warner

[2 marks]

10) Explain briefly what is meant by synergy.

[4 marks]

Where two or more media products or brands are linked for commercial purposes, eg a film and a video game based on the film.

It's the 'strategy of synchronising and actively forging connections between directly related areas of entertainment'.

This is beneficial to both media products in terms of marketing.

11) 11) Explain how Marcus Rashford has used synergy to raise the profile of his campaign.

[6 marks]

| Level | Mark range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|-------|------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3     | 5-6        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Excellent knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by consistently effective explanation of how Zoella has used synergy to increase her success.</li><li>• Consistently appropriate and effective reference to Zoella's use of Synergy.</li><li>• Consistently appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li></ul> |
| 2     | 3-4        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Satisfactory knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by generally effective explanation of how Zoella has used synergy to increase her success.</li><li>• Some appropriate and effective reference to Zoella's use of Synergy.</li><li>• Mostly appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li></ul>               |
| 1     | 1-2        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Basic knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by occasional appropriate explanation of how Zoella has used synergy to increase her success.</li><li>• Limited appropriate reference to Zoella's use of Synergy.</li><li>• Little, if any, appropriate use of subject specific terminology.</li></ul>                                              |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

Strong links with other poverty campaigns which raises profile of all concerned.

Advertising deals with brands like Nike and Burberry which helps the brand reputation of them as well as widening Rashford's audience.

Working with other celebs like Emma Thompson (collaboration) to widen both of their audiences.

12) Briefly state the role of PEGI (Pan European Game Information).

[2 marks]

Pan European Game Information (PEGI /'pegi/ "Peggy") is a European video game content rating system established to help European consumers make informed decisions when buying video games or apps through the use of age recommendations and content descriptors.

Does not have to be these exact words but must show understanding of what it is for and what it stands for.

13) 'Gender representation in video games is fair and balanced.' How far do you agree with this view? Your answer should refer to BP The Game and Lara Croft Go. [20 marks]

| Level | Mark range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|-------|------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 5     | 17-20      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Excellent knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by consistently effective discussion of gender representation in the specified video games.</li> <li>• Excellent, astute judgements and conclusions that are consistently well supported by relevant examples.</li> <li>• Consistent appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li> </ul>                 |
| 4     | 13-16      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Good knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by frequent effective discussion of gender representation in the specified video games.</li> <li>• Good judgements and conclusions that are usually supported by relevant examples.</li> <li>• Mostly appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology.</li> </ul>                                                                |
| 3     | 9-12       | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Satisfactory knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by generally appropriate but inconsistently effective discussion of gender representation in the specified video games.</li> <li>• Satisfactory judgements and conclusions that are sometimes supported by examples.</li> <li>• Often appropriate use of subject specific terminology, but inconsistently effective.</li> </ul>        |
| 2     | 5-8        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Basic knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by occasional appropriate discussion of gender representation in the specified video games but with limited effectiveness.</li> <li>• Basic judgements and conclusions that are generally unsupported by examples.</li> <li>• Occasional appropriate use of subject specific terminology and with limited effect.</li> </ul>                  |
| 1     | 1-4        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Minimal knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by very little appropriate discussion of gender representation in the specified video games.</li> <li>• Minimal, if any, judgements and conclusions that are rarely supported by examples – the response lacks reasoning.</li> <li>• Little, if any, appropriate use of subject specific terminology with no real effectiveness.</li> </ul> |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

Indicative content:

Answers in the higher bands must show extended responses that demonstrate the student's ability to construct and develop a sustained line of reasoning that is coherent, relevant, substantiated and logically structured. Responses may demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework (media language, media representations) and ability to reach judgments and draw conclusions by discussing points such as the following:

- Protagonists and hero characters in video games are much more likely to be male than female. The world re-presented in video games is one in which traditional sex role stereotypes are, in the overwhelming majority of cases, strongly reinforced.

6) Represent, the NHS Blood and Transplant campaign video, uses a range of representations in order to appeal to a black and minority ethnicity audience.

How are the different representations used in order to appeal to this target audience?

| Level | Mark range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|-------|------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3     | 5-6        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Excellent analysis of the product that is detailed and critically engages with the nuanced aspects of representations of ethnicity in the specified product.</li> <li>• Consistent appropriate and effective focus on the intended meanings created by the representations in the video.</li> <li>• Consistent appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li> </ul> |
| 2     | 3-4        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Satisfactory analysis of the product that is clear and maintains a general focus on aspects of representations of ethnicity in the specified product.</li> <li>• Some appropriate and effective focus on the intended meanings created by the representations in the video.</li> <li>• Some appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology.</li> </ul>                               |
| 1     | 1-2        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Basic analysis of the product only focusing on the more straight forward aspects of representations of ethnicity in the specified product and is mostly descriptive rather than analytical.</li> <li>• Limited appropriate focus on the intended meanings created by the representations in the video.</li> <li>• Little, if any, appropriate use of subject specific terminology.</li> </ul>       |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

Indicative content:

Responses may demonstrate ability to analyse a media product using the theoretical framework (media representations) by discussing issues such as the following:

- Represent is targeted specifically at the BAME community in order to increase the number of blood donors from that sector of society.
- The video starts by representing that audience to themselves as people with a capacity to succeed, "You could be a rapper ... you could be a pilot".
- The video stresses the potential of young BAME people to achieve their ambitions in many walks of life.
- Uses a personal mode of address by switching to the first person, "We are the voice of the streets... we are the ones making policies".
- A succession of black and Asian role models is shown in the context of their success (the Houses of Parliament, a science laboratory).
- Finally, the audience is represented to themselves as people who will be fired up by the challenge to "Give blood, save a life'. The producers have chosen to challenge negative stereotypes of the BAME community by aligning the 'give blood' message with a sense of pride in the community and the potential of its members.

5) Explain why print newspaper sales have been declining.

| Level | Mark range | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|-------|------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3     | 5-6        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Excellent and accurate knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by consistently effective explanation of why print newspaper sales have been declining.</li><li>• Consistent appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li></ul> |
| 2     | 3-4        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Satisfactory knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by some effective explanation of why print newspaper sales have been declining.</li><li>• Some appropriate and effective use of subject specific terminology throughout.</li></ul>                         |
| 1     | 1-2        | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Basic knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework, demonstrated by limited appropriate explanation of why newspaper sales have been declining.</li><li>• Little, if any, appropriate use of subject specific terminology.</li></ul>                                               |
| 0     | 0          | Nothing worthy of credit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |

Indicative content:

Demonstrates knowledge and understanding of why print newspaper sales have been declining, such as:

- Newspapers deliver out of date news – on line sites deliver news in real time and are constantly updated compared to newspapers which are printed once a day and content quickly becomes outdated
- Competition from traditional TV news bulletins – more accessible mediated information ranked by recognisable news values and illustrated by moving images
- Competition from 24 hour rolling news channels – up to date live coverage offering a sense of involvement in events as they happen
- Competition from digital media formats – any information the audience wants instantly available and from a range of different sources and viewpoints – including Apps offering personal updates. Search engines enable users to target exactly the types of news they want.
- Time pressures – reading a newspaper is an act of commitment when other activities compete for the audience's attention
- Trust issues – perceived bias in news reports and awareness of and rejection of 'spin'. 'Fake news': newspapers seen as large profit making conglomerates serving the needs of dominant groups in society
- Cost – the increasing cover price of newspapers versus information that is free on line, including newspapers' own websites.

- A high proportion of video games include acts of violence or cruelty often directed by male characters towards females.
  - Over the history of video games, female characters have had much less important roles in the action, often appearing as 'damsel in distress', or 'princesses made available as the reward for successful male characters.
  - Other common stereotypes have included the highly sexualised but non-active vamp, the ditzy blond and the evil witch.
  - Male characters are similarly stereotypical: men of action, rational thinkers, winners, skilled in handling cars, weapons and machines.
  - Gender stereotyping has been very common in video games, but there has been evidence of slight improvement in recent years.
  - Tomb Raider (1996) was the first major video game to have a female protagonist – Lara Croft – and it has continued to be a successful franchise including the successful mobile game app Lara Croft Go.
  - Lara Croft is strong, resilient and self-reliant but the depiction of her body is sexualised.
  - As a turn-based puzzle game, the actions of Lara Croft in Lara Croft Go are dictated by the player and puzzle solutions often involve killing opponents.
  - The emphasis, though, is on the solution to puzzles with minimal sex-role stereotyping, making LCGo unusual in the context of video games.
  - The dominance of male gamers has declined over the past 5-10 years and more games reflect the needs of a female or mixed gender audience. However, even those games directed at a primarily female audience such as BP the Game are based largely on a set of stereotypical assumptions that girls like to dress up stereotypically and conform only to certain looks.
- Representation of Males in BP the game also stereotypical
- Feminist critics have pointed out that the diversity of women's real-life roles is barely reflected at all in video game representations of women.

Points such as these may be used to support an argument that gender representation in video games is fair and balanced or that it is unfair and unbalanced. Responses in the higher levels may draw distinctions between 'fair' and 'balanced' and may suggest that such representations are part of a process of change and development.

|       |    |    |    |    |    |    |    |    |   |
|-------|----|----|----|----|----|----|----|----|---|
| Grade | 9  | 8  | 7  | 6  | 5  | 4  | 3  | 2  | 1 |
| Mark  | 66 | 59 | 53 | 46 | 41 | 32 | 24 | 15 | 6 |